

To make your story dice:

1. Print the sheets on A4 paper. Use thick paper or light card if available.
2. Cut out the dice with scissors, remembering to cut down the short edges of the flaps.
3. Pre-fold or score the creases around each square.
4. Fold your dice up - it's easiest if you leave the single flap until last.
5. If you want to, you can add glue or tape to secure the flaps.

How you use the dice is up to you. You can roll one at a time, or several, or all six.

Each dice has its own theme, but what each image means will vary from person to person, and there is no right or wrong interpretation.

You can make notes, write a full story, do some drawing, or talk together with friends or colleagues.

You can take your time, close your eyes and imagine, or you can set a timer and just start writing to see what happens.

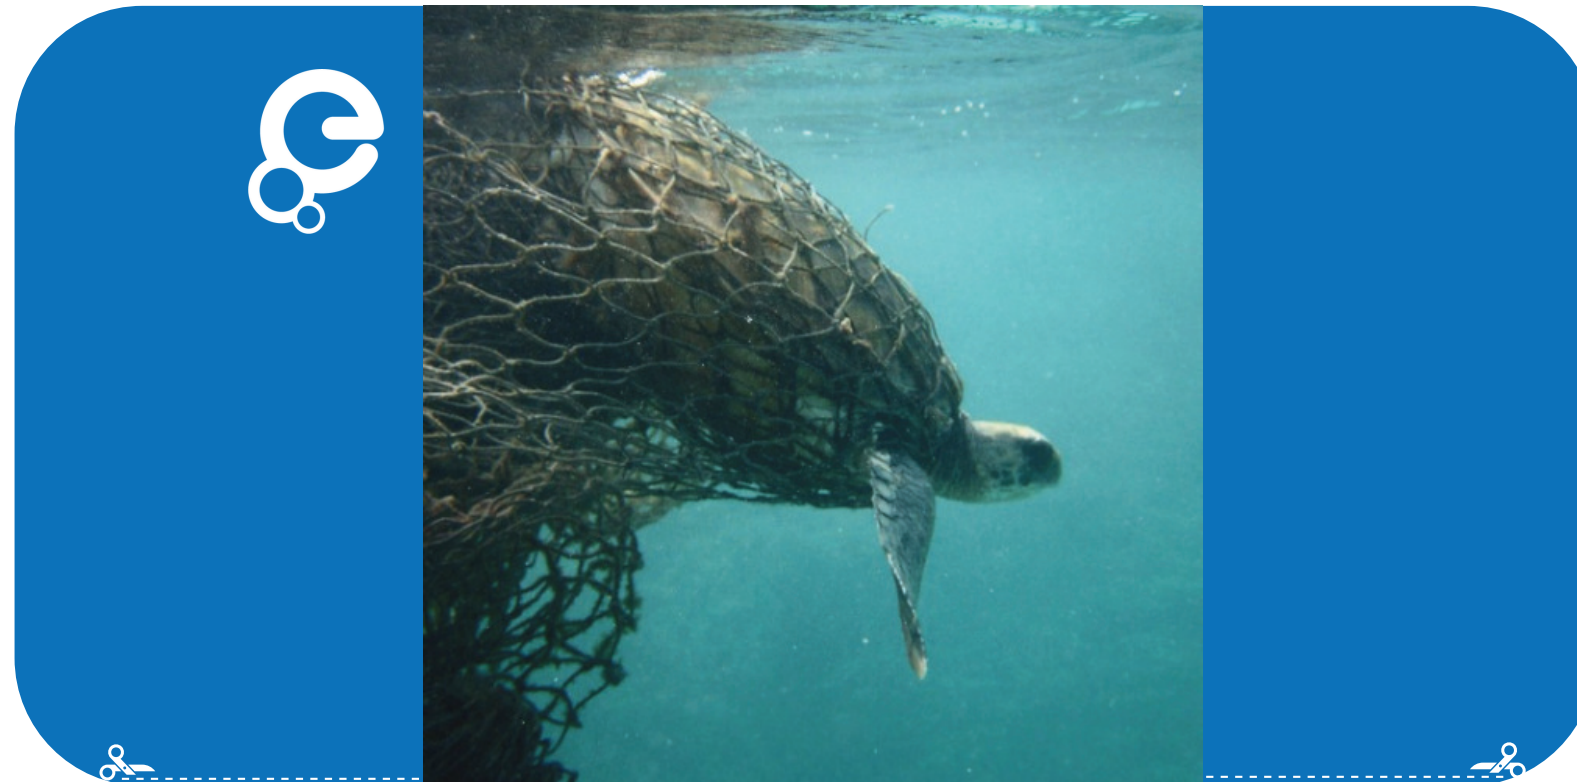

Use the dice to think about what makes a story, to consider different perspectives, or to think about the stories found in cultural heritage and art.

Roll a numbered die and play a game. Roll 1 for a character, roll 2 for an object etc. The first person to get a full set and tell their story wins!

We'd love to find out how you use the Europeana story dice, and read the stories you write.
